Course description	Sociolinguistics is an interdisciplinary science that views language in social context and attempts to explain the complexity of the relationships between language, culture and society. Students are acquainted with basic sociolinguistic phenomena through readings of literature relevant for a particular area of research. Students identify, interpret and analyze the phenomena on the basis of selected readings. Students develop critical thinking towards basic sociolinguistic areas of research and towards methods used to conduct such research. Furthermore, students are acquainted with traditional and contemporary theoretical frameworks within which such phenomena are analyzed.

Calculation of final grade	Students who pass both the mid-term and the end-term exam do not have to take the final written exam if they are satisfied with the results obtained on the mid-term and the final-term exams. Their final grade represents a combination of the results of mid-term, end-term exam and seminar presentation (mid-term exam – 40%, end-term exam – 40%, seminar presentation – 20%). Students who do not pass both the mid-term and the end-term exam have to take the final written exam. Their grade represents the combination of the results of the final exam (80%) and the seminar presentation (20%).
