Course description	This course will examine the significance of African-American literature in regard to its historical development as well as within contemporary and global context. The aim of this course is to re-examine representation of race and provide an insight into development of this part of American literature which is concentrated on racial problems by also providing specific 'tools' within literary and cultural theory (such as cultural hegemony, postmodernism, deconstruction, discourse theory, structural racism etc.). The course approaches the development of African-American literature as eligible for deeper analysis regarding the concept of race and racial identity, as well as the role of the nation in regarding to racism and, finally, problematizes the representation of race in contemporary context. With regard to these notions, the course is basically consisted of two parts. First part of the class presents the most significant authors within the African-American literary tradition, as well as the most important eras and aspects in its development. The second part is analysis of representation of race in regard to other product makers, different authors, corporations, entertainment industry and

	publishing houses such as graphic novels, popular culture, television shows, video games etc. With completion of this course, students will be able to use basic and advanced theoretical concepts of race, racism and cultural racism. They will also have improved knowledge within the field of literary and cultural theory, as well as be able to analyse the representation of race in various cultural products. Final essay should be submitted two day before the exam term.
